

THE INTERVIEW

- Prepare carefully for your interview. The Career Services Office puts together a Professional Development Guidebook which includes important details on how to prepare for an interview.
- The Career Services Office will also arrange a “mock interview” to help you further refine your interviewing skills.
- In preparing for an interview, it is a good idea to become familiar with the judge's rulings. You should also check for law review articles written by the judge as well as newspaper articles written about the judge or court.
- The Almanac of the Federal Judiciary should be consulted, if applicable, to become familiar with the judge's background.
- Re-read your writing sample before the interview to brush up on the important points.
- Former clerks can give insight into the judge's interviewing practices.
- Be careful about letting your guard down, as the judge may use your informal discussions with the clerks and the secretaries as another component of her evaluation process. Be courteous and respectful with the judge's staff.

ACCEPTING AN OFFER

- The traditional rule is that you should never say “no” when a judge offers a clerkship.
- If you apply for more than one judicial clerkship remember that the first offer may not be from your first choice. Judges respond randomly, so the first response you receive may be from your tenth choice.
- In no case should you accept an offer and later rescind your acceptance. Remember, your treatment of the judge will affect efforts of future BYU applicants.
- If you accept an offer from a judge, call the other judges you interviewed with and withdraw your name.
